THE CARILLON

CLASS OF 1956

Foreword

We, the class of 1956, have published this year book hoping that in the years to come it will help us to look back and remember some of the best years of our lives which were spent at dear old Ticonderoga High.

Dedication

We cannot put into words our sincere appreciation for the work our class adviser has put forth to make our four years in high school so successful. And so this year book is gratefully dedicated to Miss Vera Cook.

Class History

Most of the members of the Class of '56 came together in Kindergarten at Central School. However, in 1944 many of the boys and girls separated to go to the first grade-some groups in our local schools, as well as those from Putnam, Chilson, Streetroad, South Tie, and also those who had since come from other towns. These groups started the historic records of the Class of 1956, not knowing what lay before them but eager to learn. For four years followed the same pattern as the first year. In the fifth grade we met together for the first time since Kindergarten and had the addition of Dick Blood. Each of us was a little more acquainted with what was expected. Our sixth year saw the addition of Barbara Coley and Patty Dowd. Seventh and Eighth grades were both undertaken with almost the same amount of enthusiasm and zest but perhaps there was a little more in the Eighth grade because of graduation. Anne Warren, whom we have since lost, was the valedictorian and Marjorie Wisell, the salutatorian, from Ticonderoga; Ruth King, valedictorian, and Gladys Borden, salutatorian, from Putnam; and Joyce McLaughlin, valedictorian, and Dawn Sharrow, salutatorian, from Streetroad.

We became what is now the Class of 1956, except for a few losses and a few gains in our Freshman year. Each of us was still "green" and at first it was hard for us to become acquainted with both high school life and the members of the classes which came in from other schools. Under the guidance of Miss Cook, who was to be our class adviser for the next four years, and with Richard Arthur, Joseph Malaney, Patty Dowd, and Marjorie Wisell as class officers, we undertook such activities as selling seeds, Christmas cards, and school emblems, designed by Bud Miner, a member of our class. We also started an annual affair which was to occur each of our four years-a class supper, all of which have been very successful. Ernie Anauo, John Moore, and John Hall were lost this year and Irene Isabell became an addition.

Such activities as the selling of sweatshirts designed by Bud Miner and deemed very successful sellers, were continued in our third year; school banners and every day cards were sold in our second year with Joseph Malaney, Richard Arthur, Marjorie Wisell, and Anne Thompson as our class officers. We also had a big success with our Twirp Dance this year. Kenneth Phelps and Fred LaPann were our only additions but we lost Patty Dowd and Gladys Borden.

With Joseph Malaney, Anne Thompson, Jane Burleigh and Marjorie Wisell as our class officers, our third year was a busy, yet successful one. Our Junior plays and our Junior Prom, of which the theme was "An Evening in Paris," were just two examples of how well we worked together as a group, not only for money but also for pleasure. We also, for the first time, were able to sell candy at football games and after school. In this year we were very unhappy to lose Doris Barnaby, Betty Welch, Anne Warren, Tommy Nadeau, Donald Schryer, Raymond Snyder, and Pat O'Connor.

Then, we finally reached the last plateau with these class officers: William Benway, Joseph Malaney, Marjorie Wisell, and Anne Thompson. Occupied by such activities as our Senior Play, our Christmas Dance, the candy room, which we inherited from the Class of 1955, the selling of cards and stationery, and also the selling of candy at basketball games, we were still able to find the time and energy to plan the two activities which had been our main goal since our Freshman year-our yearbook and our Senior Trip. Our only loss this year has been George Saunders.

The end of our high schools days is now drawing closer; however, though some of us will be going to college, others will take jobs, and still others will get married, it will not be easy and, in most cases, impossible to forget those with whom we spent the most important years of our lives.

Class Prophecy

(20 years after Graduation)

Having just completed the third day of a very difficult trial, in which I, Paula Gibbs, was the defending attorney, I drank a glass of warm milk and fell into a deep slumber. I dreamed I was in a peaceful meadow gazing into a pool of clear water. One by one, the faces of my classmates appeared before me in the water. The first face to appear was that of Sally Clark. She is a happily married housewife. Bernetta Brock is, too, and that did not surprise me. However, several of the others were more surprising.

Then the face of Ken Phelps appeared. He declared he was a politician and Kathy Duquette his secretary. Several of our class have been very successful in their chosen fields. Mary Jane Lester is a famous heart specialist and Ruth King is her secretary. The next face that appeared was Billy Benway's. He now runs a factory which manufactures footballs. James Edward Clark, "Clarkie" is his best customer because he coaches a pro-football team. The face of Emmetta Gonyea came on the water, telling that she is in Arizona raising horses. Recently she took Maureen McLaughlin into partnership. This farm received a write up in Joyce McLaughlin's column in the Albany Times Union.

Next appeared to me the WAC enlistments of the "Class of '56," Barbara Coley, Jean McKeown, and Patty Connors. Also appeared the faces of the boys who had either enlisted or been drafted into the armed forces. John Thompson and Dick Arthur are making the Marines their career, and Pat Donovan and Jim Morin are doing the same in the Air Force. Clearly in this pool I could see the face of Dick Wright. He plays the sax in a New York City night club. The nurse corps gained two valuable people from our class, Dawn Sharrow and Anne Thompson.

The face of Donna Shaw came to my misty eyes. She recently had an accident while trying out her new sports car. Fortunately she recovered and did not require the services of Bud Miner, the town undertaker. Two faces in the pool startled me. Those were of the boys who have gone to work in the paper mill, Howard Trudeau and Stephen Armstrong. Howard repairs faucets in the wash rooms and Steve is chauffeur for the bosses.

Patty Brown's face came into the pool next. It told me she is a lab technician in New York City. Don Johnson couldn't leave Streetroad; he is now running his father's business. Bitsey LaPointe has achieved great fame as a trouble-shooter for the government. The next faces which appeared dimly were those of the teachers from our class: Gerry Wolcott, Joe Malaney, and Jane Burleigh. Gerry teaches American History XI and XII in Ticonderoga, Joe heads the choir of Syracuse University, and Jane teaches languages in Hollywood High School.

Fred La Pann now coaches Ticonderoga High's basketball team. Doris Carpenter, true to her plans in high school, did attend an undertaking school. She didn't stay through to finish her course because she married one of the undertaking instructors of the school. So we narrowly missed having two undertakers in our class. The face of Donald Porter appeared telling me that he has taken over his father's business. Barbara Gijanto and Don Johnson are a happily married couple, parents of three boys. Albert Thompson runs a farm now.

The last face that appeared was not too clear but I recognized it as that of Marjorie Wisell. She told me that she had taken over Mrs. Ash's place after the latter had retired. Then all there was before me was a pool, followed by blackness. I was awakened by the alarm clock and rose, prepared for another day, but no longer worried about my classmates.
